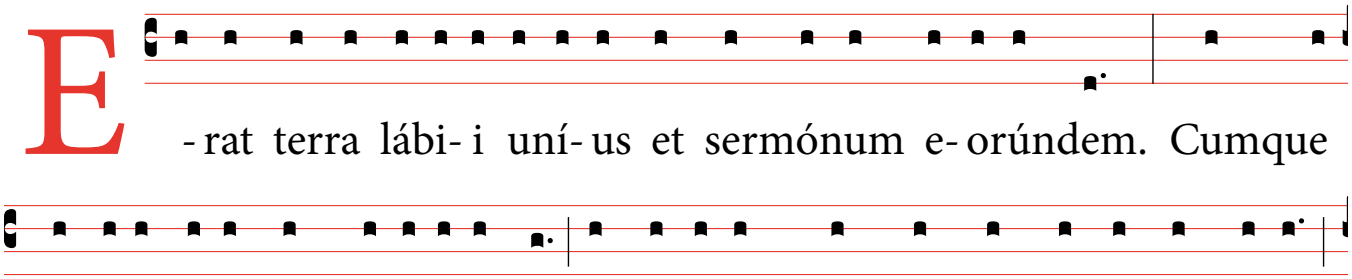
Reading I for Vigil of Pentecost

Ad Missam in Vigilia

Genesis 11:1–9

Lécti-o libri Génesis



E-rat terra lábi-i uní-us et sermónum e-orúndem. Cumque pro-ficisceréntur de ori-énte, invenérunt campum in terra Sénna-ar, et habi-tavérunt in e-o. Dixítque alter ad próximum su-um: « Ení-te, faci-ámus láteres, et coquámus e-os igni ». Habu-erúntque láteres pro saxis, et bitúmen pro cæménto. Et dixérunt: « Ení-te, faci-ámus nobis civi-tátem et turrim, cuius culmen pertíngat ad cælum, et ce-lebrémus nomen nostrum ántequam dividámur in univérsas terras ». Descéndit autem Dóminus, ut vidéret civi- tátem et turrim, quam ædi- ficábant fí- li- i Adam; et dixit: « Ecce unus est pópulus et unum lábi- um ómnibus: cœperúntque hoc fácere, nec desístent a cogi- ta- ti- ónibus su- is, donec e- as ópere cómple- ant. Ení- te, ígitur, descendámus et confundámus ibi linguam e- órum, ut non áudi- at unusquísque vocem próximi su- i ». Atque i- ta diví- sit e- os Dóminus ex illo loco in univérsas terras; et cessavérunt ædi- ficáre civi- tátem. Et idcírco vocátum est nomen eius Babel, qui- a ibi confúsum est lábi- um univérsæ terræ; et inde dispérsit e-os Dóminus super fáci-em cunctárum regi-ónum ».
